Gov't, Private Sector Formally Launch Pilipinas Kontra Gutom

MANILA – Cabinet Secretary Karlo Nograles has underscored the strong collaboration between the government and the private sector to accomplish the “daunting task” to end hunger in the country. This as the government and private sector partners formally launched on Monday the Pilipinas Kontra Gutom (PKG), a national and multi-sectoral anti-hunger movement, to work together on various programs with a common goal: 1 million fewer hunger Filipinos by 2022.

“With the strong synergy and collaboration between government and the private sector, this daunting task will be much more bearable. With the support of the PKG, we will be able to augment our resources and craft better plans and strategies so we can reach more and do more,” Nograles said during the PKG virtual launch program.

With the support of the private sector, non-government organizations, and civil society groups, and spearheaded by the government’s Task Force Zero Hunger (TFZH) chaired by Nograles, PKG is adopting a whole-of-nation approach to achieve its immediate and longterm goals of addressing involuntary hunger and malnutrition in the Philippines—an urgent concern given the millions of families that grapple with hunger in the country.

“Through this whole-of-nation approach, we are optimistic that we can end hunger by 2030,” Nograles said. Nograles thanked all the groups and organizations “that recognize the importance of battling hunger and have committed to work for a hunger-free Philippines.

“Hunger is a silent enemy that can no longer be ignored; maraming apektado, at maraming kailangan tulungan (Many are affected and in need of assistance). In our campaign against hunger, we should be all in, all out—anyone who can pitch in should help, and those who can help should go all out,” he said.
