Firefighters Are Our Friends (Verbs)

A. Underline all the action words in the paragraph below.

Firefighters are heroes, too. They battle fires that break out in homes, factories, office buildings, boats, forests, and many other places. Firefighters respond to many other emergencies, too. They help victims from accidents such as train wrecks and airplane crashes. They rescue people when earthquakes, floods, or violent storms hit. Today, firefighters spend most of their time dealing with emergencies that are not fire-related. Firefighters rush to help people who have had heart attacks and other medical emergencies. Firefighters risk their lives to make the world a safer place to live in.

B. Write the correct action word in the blank to complete the sentence. Choose your answer from the words in the box.
