Making Connections

A. Identify the kind of connection given in each item. Choose from the options inside the box and write only the letter of the correct answer in your notebook. Answers may be repeated.

A. Text-to-Text

B. Text-to-Self

C. Text-to-World

_____ 1. A shampoo commercial in 2017 showed the importance of gender equality, which remains to be an issue in some countries.

_____ 2. Spoken word poetry reminds me of hugot lines shared on social media sites that easily capture Pinoys' attention and make them pause, laugh, and think.

_____ 3. The story "Alamat ng Pinya" reminds me that I need to be an obedient and respectful child to my parents so that I will not end up like the character, Pinang, who was punished because of her disobedience.

_____ 4. The Anti-Spanish Flu posters in 1918 showed the need for the people's strong cooperation in following health protocols so that they were able to manage the spread of the virus. The posters bear the same content as the infographics released nowadays to counter the transmission of COVID-19.

_____ 5. The story of "The Little Prince" and "The Velveteen Rabbit" both convey the relevance of authenticity in our lives. In "The Little Prince," the fox taught the little prince what he could do so that they could be friends for real. Meanwhile, in "The Velveteen Rabbit," the toy rabbit became shabbier to look at as the boy became fonder of him. The rabbit grew to love the boy and became real.

Do I still need to wear a mask after I get the COVID-19 vaccine?

Yes! We don't yet know whether the vaccine prevents you from spreading the virus to others, even if it protects you from getting sick yourself. As we wait for more people to be vaccinated, we should all keep wearing masks, washing our hands frequently, limiting gatherings, and practicing social distancing.

The visual text reminds me of _____

3. Text-to-Text
