Saving Birds and Trees

by Keith Dylan

Our house is near a beautiful tree in a forest. The tree is very big and very old. It is a home for many birds. Birds and other animals live in the forest. No one can harm the trees and all the living creatures in the forest.

One day, many other birds flew to the forest. They came from the nearby city. There was hardly any tree left in that city. Their eggs fell and the newly-hatched babies died.

One day, I got scared because I saw a group of hunters and loggers on their way to our forest. My family got frightened because we knew they were going to cut trees and shoot birds.

We thought of what to do to keep the birds and other animals safe. My father knew that a bird watcher named Mr. Casey was a friend of the birds. He belonged to a group of people that kept the environment safe. If he could visit the forest, he would surely do something to protect the trees, birds, and other animals. He was our only hope. We planned to make him visit the forest.

My father spotted Mr. Casey in his house near the forest. He invited him to visit the forest. He saw different kinds of lovely birds. He also saw the bad guys cutting down the trees.

Mr. Casey was very angry. Using his cell phone, he called the police. The bad guys were arrested.

The government did all means to keep the birds, trees, and animals safe. They now live peacefully.

The number of bird watchers increased. But it is alright with us because they keep the forest safe.
