Making Inferences

A. Make inferences about each paragraph. Include the clues that helped you arrive at your inferences.

The day of the audience arrived. The girl appeared with her plantless pot, and saw that all the other candidates had achieved wonderful results: each girl bore a flower lovelier than the last, in the most varied forms and colors.

1. What can you infer about the other girls?

2. What clue made you arrive at such interference?

Then the prince calmly explained the reasoning behind the challenge.

3. What can be inferred from the calmness of the prince?

4. What clue made you arrive at such interference?

Michael called Carlo on Tuesday afternoon and invited him to come to his house after dinner to watch a movie. It had been a long and boring day and Carlo looked forward to doing something. After dinner, he hopped on his bicycle and pedaled over to Michael's house. On his way, he saw a car of Michael's dad sped by. He wondered at a thought and made his way to Michael's residence. The house was dark, and when he rang the bell, there was no answer. Carlo turned to hop on his bike, and rode home.

5. What had Carlo realized?

6. What clue made you arrive at such interference?

Beth has been walking back and fourth outside the operating room since 11:00 o'clock last night. She left for a while to get coffee from the vending machine and continued walking back and fourth again, with her coffee and her mobile phone in her hands. By 3:00 in the morning, she received a call. After receiving the call, she started texting her boss, informing the latter that she could not go to work today until the next day.

7. Why do you think Beth would not go to work?

8. What clue made you arrive at such interference?

Elisa carefully place the box over the glossy wrapper. She folded, cut, and taped it several times until the box is completely covered. She places a pink ribbon and a pink card on top, and handed it over to the waiting lady. She got another box and a plain red wrapper and started folding, cutting and taping again.

9. Where does Elisa work?
